Don't say we didn't warn you

Ok, so not to freak anybody out but we may suffered from an alien abduction. Last thing we remember it was around October, it was cold and we really needed a break. Then something happened and now it's cold and we really need a break, but the calendar says it's...March? And for some reason our wallets are empty, too. That's not funny, you Greys! Although it does explain a LOT about Starbucks. If you put on those glasses from They Live (and don't tell us you haven't seen it – you'll just make yourself look foolish) I bet that's pretty much what all the bosses there look like. Don't let them harvest your soul - support your local alien free non-soul-harvesting coffee shop!

Money passing exchange price

Sales. What can be said that hasn't already been said? Well, probably something. Let's try cutting up the first paragraph of the Wikipedia article on Sales like we were Burroughs.

“Generally settlement seller sells executes money passing exchange price (property which price. of of or money purchaser on seller obligation of sale the of the commodity person purchaser sale agrees for service upon salesman”. Ok - any questions?

Pachyderm in the room

As some of you probably noticed, the Boss Lady has been really quite ill through all of 2015 thus far. As you probably also noticed the rest of the team stepped up like the champs they are and worked like dogs to keep you all in tasty snacks and delicious coffee.

As The Management we wanted to take this time to thank everyone who helped keep the place running. Insert smiley emoticon!

Enough of that hippie crap – where are the graphs?

What, you thought just 'cause we sent out a heartfelt thank you like the good Canadians we are that we were going to spend the rest of this space talking about love or something? Hells no! It's graph time, you mofo's!

So below us we have the graph which shows us the profit. The profit – which if you listen to Jeru The Damanja you would know you can't stop – was in effect. Or at least in Gross form. You'll all remember from newsletters past that we still have to remove some other stuff. Stuff like overhead, payroll, taxation, and interest payments. And you'll also remember from the bit above here – and if you skipped right to the pretty pictures, for shame – that we had a lot of people doing a lot of good work and selling you the good product. Yo. So the good news is that the numbers are good. The bad news is we aren't rich yet, so we all have to keep working. Which is probably good news to you, the customer! And we will probably have to do so for the foreseeable future.

In fact, we might even have some new stuff planned for if/when it gets warmer! But more on that when we get closer to it to do it.

Previous trivia of dubious quality has been replaced with new (to us) trivia. The quality has not noticeably improved. (Note all spelling and grammar errors are theirs).

Here's what Time Magazine says about people drinking coffee. Obviously not YOU people, though.

They also say that the US government is buying pot from the U of Mississippi. So there's that.

Employee of the month

This month was a tough one, no lie. A lot of people put in a lot of really hard work this month. However, we thought long and hard about it and we decided that really there was only one person it could go to...without hurting someone's feelings. Everyone worked really hard but you have to admit this guy was a trooper!

About Our Organization...

The Grackle Management Team is made up of driven, clever and good-looking residents of Schomberg. We squeezed in some graphs again this issue, of course. We regularly meet at Port Soiree, in the rooms where women come and go and talk of Michelangelo, and if you haven't been there, you should. Meetings over Mexican food from Mexicanada in Bradford, Mono Cliffs Inn, or Port Soiree are also sometimes required. This quarter our reporting is running pretty well completely late, but don't freak out. There's still not much you can do about it so hopefully you took our advice and learned to like it.
